

DENTSPLY International Acquires Glenroe Technologies Inc.

DENTSPLY International Inc. announced on May 17th 2005 that it has acquired Glenroe Technologies

June 2005 – Glenroe Technologies has been manufacturing quality orthodontic and dental products since 1984, specializing in plastic injection molding, manufacturing ligature ties, separators and other elastomeric products.

DENTSPLY International, the world's largest manufacturer and distributor of dental products in more than 120 countries, said that Glenroe's product research, development and engineering expertise would help its other existing orthodontic divisions to develop innovative new products that advance its orthodontic practices.

"Glenroe's business operations will continue to grow and develop new products by expanding our manufacturing plants at a much faster rate due to the access of capital," said John Bozman Sr., General Manger of Glenroe Technologies Inc. "Densply is committed to product research which is Glenroe's forte. Innovation is the key mission for both companies." He expects the combined companies to grow faster than if they were operating separately in the orthodontic industry.
